the urban task force headed by lord rogers one of the uk s leading architects was established by the department of environment transport and regions detr to stimulate debate about our urban environment and to identify ways of creating urban areas in direct response to people s needs and aspirations their findings conclusions and recommendations were presented in a final report to government ministers in summer 1999 and form the basis of this important new illustrated book the desire of governments for a renaissance of their cities is a defining feature of contemporary urban policy from melbourne and toronto to johannesburg and istanbul government policies are successfully attracting investment and middle class populations to their inner areas regeneration or gentrification as it can often become produces winners and losers there is a substantial literature on the causes and unequal effects of gentrification and on the global and local conditions driving processes of dis and re investment but there is little examination of the actual strategies used to achieve urban regeneration what were their intents did they succeed and if not why not and what were the specific consequences whose urban renaissance asks who benefits from these urban transformations the book contains beautifully written and accessible stories from researchers and activists in 21 cities across europe north and south america asia south africa the middle east and australia each exploring a specific case of urban regeneration some chapters focus on government or market strategies driving the regeneration process and look closely at the effects others look at the local contingencies that influence the way these strategies work still others look at instances of opposition and struggle and at policy interventions that were used in some places to ameliorate the inequities of gentrification working from these stories the editors develop a comparative analysis of regeneration strategies with nuanced assessments of local constraints and counteracting policy responses the concluding chapters provide a critical comparison of existing strategies and open new directions for more equitable policy approaches in the future whose urban renaissance is targeted at students academics planners policy makers and activists the book is unique in its geographical breadth and its constructive policy emphasis offering a succinct critical and timely exploration of urban regeneration strategies throughout the world

this collection adds weight to an emerging argument that policies to make cities better are inextricably linked to an attempt to pacify and regulate crime and disorder it provides discussions from a range of scholars examining policy connections that can be traced between social urban and crime policy and the wider processes of regeneration

this book documents and assesses the core of new labour s approach to the revitalisation of cities that is the revival of citizenship democratic renewal and the participation of communities to spear head urban change in doing so the book explores the meaning and relevance of community as a focus for urban renaissance it interrogates the conceptual and ideological content of new labour s conceptions of community and through the use of case studies evaluates how far and with what effects such conceptions are shaping contemporary urban policy and practice the book is an important text for students and researchers in geography urban studies planning sociology and related disciplines it will also be of interest to officers working in local and central government voluntary organisations community groups and those with a stake in seeking to enhance democracy and community involvement in urban policy and practice belfast is at a turning point in its history if it is to succeed as the peace process advances the achievements of past urban regeneration efforts need to be evaluated in order to set in place effective policies and strategies for the future beginni dick atkinson s text deals with the regeneration of the troubled inner city areas his work in the midland s inner city districts such as birmingham s balsall heath has received wide critical acclaim an acclaimed history of harlem s journey from urban crisis to urban renaissance with its gleaming shopping centers and refurbished row houses today s harlem bears little resemblance to the neighborhood of the midcentury urban crisis brian goldstein traces harlem s second renaissance to a surprising source the radical social movements of the 1960s that resisted city officials and fought to give harlemites control of their own destiny young harlem activists inspired by the civil rights movement envisioned a harlem built by and for its low income predominantly african american population in the succeeding decades however the community based organizations they founded came to pursue a very different goal a neighborhood with national retailers and increasingly affluent residents the roots of urban renaissance demonstrates that gentrification was not imposed on an unwitting community by unscrupulous developers or opportunistic outsiders rather it grew from the neighborhood s grassroots producing a legacy that benefited some longtime residents and threatened others
